Stamping Art JUDGING CRITERIA

• EXPERTISE AND TECHICNAL SKILL

The aim here is to demonstrate your technical abilities and how well you can execute those skills. Looking at the overall design, is it the best reflection of your skill level? Is it reflective of the division you're competing in? -Technical abilities involve taking the practical knowledge of a skill or technique and demonstrating it.

COLOUR THEORY

Colour has the ability to evoke feeling and direct focus.

Consider how the colour palette works in harmony to complement the overall design. For example, in creating contrast or to showcase the design in a way that epiphyses any key elements or feelings.

PRODUCT KNOWLEDGE

This is an opportunity to demonstrate your vast product knowledge. Remembering to incorporate at least 3 nail products/mediums into your design and use them in an artistic and creative way. Consider how the nail art mediums complement each other and make sense to the overall design.

• VISUAL DESIGN

It's all about balance and flow. When considering the design concept, it's important to show a visual rhythm throughout the artwork. Is it in symmetry and does the design flow across all 10 nails as well as independently. Basically, is the set too busy or too sparce, does each tip have a balanced amount of art.

• PRODUCT CONTROL AND WORKMANSHIP

This is a chance to showcase our ability to maneuver and manage nail products.

For example, has your gel been applied evenly without streaks, transparent patches, bubbles, pitting or dull/shiny spots -depending on the finish. If glitters or other nail art supplies (such as foil) are used consider the finish, is it controlled and sitting where it was intended.

The finishing touches, once the piece is complete are there are any imperfections left behind from creating the nail art design. ie; smudged polish, dust, excess adhesive around embellishments etc.

• UNIQUENESS

It's good to think outside the box and express yourself creativity. Aim to show a creative interpretation of your concept, whether that be through colour, design, theme or something depicted in a new or different way.

OVERALL IMPRESSION

They say don't judge a book by its cover, but first impressions are important. what is the initial feeling you're wanting to evoke; have you captured that it the design?

Now looking passed first impressions of the artwork, does the design draw you into new elements or techniques used. The more you look, the more details you want to discover.
